DON’T ATTEMPT TO MOUNT YOUR OWN TIRES

Tire design, loading, and inflation are critical to the safety and serviceability of a tire over time. A factor in the design of a tire is the service life. Service life is the distance, in miles or kilometers, a tire can carry its load at the recommended inflation pressure before the tread is worn down to minimum depth.

The tread life of your tire is important to the serviceability of the tire over time. For maximum benefit, tires must be maintained properly and replaced if driven to these limits. To help prolong tire life and avoid vehicle damage, tire owners should:

- Check tire pressures. If the tires are not inflated to the recommended pressure, the tire will be damaged. Underinflation is hazardous.
- Avoid hard cornering, hard braking and severe handling maneuvers.
- Avoid hard cornering and handling maneuvers. Remember that when your tires have lost air pressure, your vehicle's handling capability is reduced, particularly during severe maneuvers.

BEFORE DRIVING WITH A RUN FLAT TIRE

Never exceed the maximum load capacity and wheel imbalance and misalignment can cause vibration or irregular tire wear. Replace your tires according to your vehicle manufacturer’s recommendations or at maximum intervals of 6,000 miles (10,000 km).

TIRE PRESSURE-MONITORING SYSTEM

The Goodyear Run-Flat tire pressure-monitoring system is designed for use only on certain original equipment wheels supplied with a properly operating low tire pressure-monitoring system. If applied to a vehicle without a properly operating low tire pressure-monitoring system, the tires may fail when operated in an underinflated condition, resulting in loss of vehicle control and possible serious injury or death. TO PROLONG TIRE LIFE DURING A SYSTEM ALERT

If your vehicle is equipped with run-flat (extended mobility) tires.
